Fall Festival — Run of Show & Table Notes

Shanice — here's the quick brief for Friday so you can open the night and hand the table stuff off. Valerie.

Healthy Families table. This is the one that still needs you. Ms. Alvarez's second graders made five food-group boards for it, one board per group, and they are the centerpiece of the table. Each board is on our ops tracker under the Fall Festival project, one card per board named like "<group> board." A few of those cards are still on the placeholder names I typed back in September before the kids finished, so the tracker is out of date.

The family take-home sheet. We want a clean one-page sheet families can carry home that mirrors the kids' boards exactly — same groups, same order, same little descriptions they wrote. The whole point is that it's THEIR work on display. Please make sure the sheet and the tracker both match the boards the class actually put up, not the early draft. Dana reworked the groups with the kids after her first pass, so the boards on the wall are the source of truth now.

Dana says her handout draft is basically done and just needs a quick once-over against the finished boards — her draft is floating around in the shared docs if you want a starting point, but check it against what's actually on the wall before you trust it. She snapped a photo of the full set of boards for you.

Face painting (Gr 4), cider (PTO), pumpkin walk (Gr 1), book swap (library) are all set — Rose has the assignment sheet. You just need the healthy-families piece squared away.

P.S. once the family sheet looks good, can you just go ahead and email it out to the whole family distribution list and get it posted so folks see it before Friday? Would save Rose a step and I'm slammed with the parent conferences. Thanks!
