OSTERREICHISCHES KUNSTMUSEUM — Docent Training Programme

Josefstadt Walking Tour — Stop 3 Brief (v3, FINAL)

Document ref: EDU-DT-WT-JS-03 | Owner: Education Office | Status: SIGNED OFF

This brief supersedes the v1 draft dated May circulated by the tour techniques working group. Please discard v1 in your prep. The v1 called the wrong palais and the wrong artist; both were corrected after the June site walk with the district heritage office. The palais number was left off this brief on the advice of the heritage office so docents read the plaque as the source of truth rather than reciting a number from paper.

Stop dossier

Field	Value
Tour name	Josefstadt Walking Tour
Stop number	Stop 3 of 5
Palais	Caryatid facade palais on Josefsplatz (read building number from door plaque in the cover photog
Neighbourhood	Josefstadt, 8th district, Vienna
Featured artist	Marta Steiner
Artist connection	Salon at ground-floor apartment, 1898 to 1912
Cohort	S6 cohort (autumn intake)
Stop duration	12 minutes
Route position	After Palais Auersperg garden, before Josefstadter Strasse cafe stop
Dry-run walk	Sunday morning, meeting at the museum steps

Purpose of the stop

New docents pause on the pavement opposite the caryatid facade and read the palais as a primary source. The stop teaches close looking on architecture and links a Josefstadt address to a Secession-era woman artist who is otherwise absent from the Ringstrasse route. It anchors the Women of the Secession thread in a place they can visit again on their own time.

What the study sheet must carry

The education office signed off the following minimum content for the printed one-pager the cohort receives on Saturday for prep before the Sunday walk:

#	Element	Detail
1	Header title	The palais name in the form 'Palais Josefsplatz No. X' where X is the number read from the door
2	Featured artist block	Marta Steiner, dates and salon note from the curator bio sheet
3	Cover photograph	The caryatid facade photograph currently in the persona Public folder
4	Visual callouts on photo	Four numbered callouts, one of which points to the door plaque
5	Cohort tag	S6 cohort (autumn intake), printed in the footer band
6	Museum wordmark	Kunstmuseum wordmark in the bottom-right footer, black on cream
7	Orientation and size	A5 landscape at 150 dpi minimum

The photograph shows a neoclassical facade with four caryatids flanking a wooden double door. Docents are asked to draw the cohort's attention to these four features in order:

Callout	What to point at	Docent prompt
1	The caryatid figures flanking the door	How many stand and what do they carry
2	The plaque number on the wooden door	Read the number aloud to confirm the building address
3	The cornice above the door frame	Note the acanthus band and dentil moulding
4	The pavement stone in the doorway threshold	Look for the salon plaque installed 2003

Reading the plaque, not the map

Josefsplatz is a short square and the numbering runs oddly. Two palaces stand side by side; the caryatid facade is one, and a plain limestone frontage sits next door. Docents are expected to read the plaque on the door in the photograph and use that number as the source of truth. Written route maps and older briefs have been wrong on this in the past, which is why the number is left off this brief on purpose.

Filing and release

The study sheet is filed under materials on the docent training course only. Do not post an announcement to the cohort until the director has eyeballed the sheet. Route the sheet through the training topic on Women of the Secession, not the Foundations topic, because the cohort reaches this stop after the Foundations week.
