ELEANOR'S TAVERN

Feed Style Sheet, revision 4

Kept by Sophia Kastner. Carlton signed off on this look. Every post on the grid matches it.

1. THE HOUSE LOOK

The room at eight on a Friday. That is the whole brief. Every frame should look like it was taken at the table, in our light, by somebody who was about to eat.

a. Warm light only. The tungsten over the booths. Amber, never blue.
b. Dark ground. Walnut table, dark wood, the deep end of the room behind it.
c. Tight on the food. The plate fills the frame. Crop in, then crop in again.
d. Corners fall off dark. The light pools on the plate and the edges go quiet.
e. Square frame on the grid.

2. WHAT NEVER GOES UP

These are the tells that a post was shot on a phone in the wrong room at the wrong hour. Any one of them is enough to keep a frame off the grid.

a. Direct flash. It flattens the food and throws a hard shadow behind the plate.
b. Cool or white light. Grey walls, blue-white plates, daylight balance.
c. Bright flat backgrounds. If the wall reads pale grey, it is the wrong frame.
d. Wide frames with the table clutter left in around the plate.

3. BUILDING THE GUIDE

When we pull a style guide, we build it from the posts that performed well AND sat inside the house look. A post that pulled a big number while breaking the look is not the model to copy, it is the exception to explain. Engagement alone does not make a frame on brand.

4. PULLING A POST

Only Carlton decides whether a post comes down. Flag it, re-edit it, bring it to him. Taking a live post off the grid is his call and his alone.
